POLITICAL PARADE

By CLEM WHITAKER

The campaign for a substantial reduction in state taxes—as a partial offset to the staggering increase in national defense taxes—is gathering tremendous momentum throughout the state, despite the fact that it has been accorded a hostile reception by Governor Culbert L. Olson.

With official revenue forecasts indication that the state's income for the present biennium will exceed authorized expenditures by almost 100 million dollars, and with federal tax levies starting to pinch the poorman's purse, as well as the pocketbook of the rich man and the man-in-between, the Economy Bloc of the state legislature has swung into action again.

From every section of the state, lawmakers are writing the Governor, demanding that the legislature be called back into special session to reduce state taxes and thereby afford relief to California workers, home-owners and small business men. And the demand is so insistent that if Governor Olson ignores it much longer, it may well be his political downfall at the gubernatorial election next fall. For the man who pays the taxes is learning, gradually that the state is collecting more money from him than it needs—more than it can possibly expend, except by the introduction of a new era of governmental extravagance which will transcend anything which has gone before.

Assemblyman Charles W. Stream of San Diego has written the Governor: "I have the data before me that convinces me that if you would call the legislature in a short special session, we could reduce the burdens of our taxpayers millions of dollars. Those of us who are members of the legislature are not alone in realizing that this can be done. Hundreds of men and women in my county have called my attention to these facts and are asking to be informed as to why we do not convene and make the necessary reductions . . . . "

From Assemblyman Seth Millington of Gridley ,at the other end of the state, Governor Olson has received this appeal: "It seems to me that good government demands that we anticipate the accumulation of a state surplus and let the money stay in the hands of the taxpayers where it belongs and where it is always available by the taxing powers of the state if it is needed . . . . "

On the other hand, Assemblyman C. Don Field of Los Angeles ,who had written the Governor asking for a special session to reduce taxes, reports receipt of a letter from Mr. Olson stating that he (the Governor) believed that such a reduction in state taxes would be "unwise."

But the heat is still on—and will doubtless stay on, until taxes are reduced or a new Governor is elected. The people back home, knowing that federal taxes are certain to double and treble, want economy and tax reduction in state government. And the legislators, when they write the Governor, are merely echoing their sentiments.The people are speaking!

P.-T. A. Unit Hears Interesting Talk On Narcotics

The Campbell Union Grammar School P.-T. A. held its annual Father's Night" program, Tuesday, Dec. 2

The program was opened with selections by the school orchestra under the direction of A. A. Thielke.

Mrs. W. F. Grattan welcomed everyone and especially the fathers. She announced that there are 265 members in this unit and that the state membership is 261,118. The national membership is two million.

The Campbell units have been working for some kind of stop signal at Winchester road and Campbell avenue and it was reported that a four way stop would soon be installed there.

The rest of the business meeting was omitted in favor of a program of which Mrs. W. H. Van Dyke was chairman.

The newly organized a capella choir at the grammar school, displayed unusual talent in the presentation of three numbers under the direction of Paul Becker.

After the musical portion of the entertainment, Mrs. Van Dyke introduced the guest speaker, Leo Rice, an investigator for the state division of narcotic enforcement. Mr. Rice's talk on Temperance and Narcotics was very interesting as he told the story of opium from the poppy stage and preparation to the effects upon the users. He pointed out that due to the high cost of opium there was little or no danger of it reaching the schools. A large percentage of it is being smuggled in from Mexico.

The habit, he stated, first

Senior Class Scores Record In Laugh Hit

With 161 chuckles, 88 giggles, 19 guffaws, and 11 roars of laughter registering on the laugh meter, the senior class of Campbell Union High school scored with its hit production of "Tish" last Friday night.

The three old maids, Mable Pickett, Gloria Perine, and Rae Ekstrand, along with Frank Savstrom as the sheriff, turned in one of the finest combinations of characterizations ever seen on the local stage. A splendid supporting cast contributed to make the intrinsically funny comedy a hilarious success.

The acquisition by the high school of several new spotlights also played a large part in the success of the play, since it enabled the stage managers to erect elaborate backings and light them properly, as well as providing for scientific lighting on the stage.

Joseph Halamicek Noted Musician Called By Death

In the passing of Joseph Francis Halamicek, whose death occurred Saturday, a noted musician was lost to the community.

Mr. Halamicek was born over 80 years ago in Czechoslovakia where he studied music and became accomplished both as a violinist and pianist.

Coming to this country, with his brother-in-law, the late Jan Kalas, they located in Chicago, where for over 30 years he was organist at St. Vincent's Cathedral, and instructor in violin and composition at the American Conservatory of Music.

The two families later came to Campbell where they have been connected with the musical world since. Jan Kalas was a violin cello artist and instructor at San Jose State college and his daughters, Miss Bozena Kalas taught piano at the College of Pacific and Miss Helen is a teacher of voice.

Mr. and Mrs. Halamicek had one son, Camille, who is also a violinist and conducts a studio at Santa Ana, and whose two daughters have their lives and humours won laurels as musical prodigies.

Mr. and Mrs. Halamicek have had their home for a number of years on Fourth street in Campbell, where he had been ill for some months but had recently been removed to a hospital where his death occurred. His body was taken to Santa Ana for burial.

Thanksgiving day at the P. B. Paynes on Harrison avenue, saw a full house, the last big family party in the old place. The following were present: Mr. and Mrs. M. G. Greenly, the Misses Jean, Lani, Phyllis and Dora Greenly, Mrs. A. Y. Hoag, Mr. and Mrs. P. B. Payne, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. W. Glen Curtis and Miss Linda, Mrs. W. C. Wrigglesworth, Ruth, Howard and Mr. and Mrs. P. B. Payne, Sr.

Subdivisions Are Included In Local Fire District

Petitions of two subdivisions for inclusion in the Campbell fire district have been completed, E. E. Lanphear, a member of the fire commission has reported. They are the Del Patio and the newer Los Palos tracts, both bordering the Los Gatos creek, north of Campbell avenue.

Three other subdivisions are preparing petitions, which the commissioners hope to have all approved by the county board of supervisors before next years assessments are made.

Residents of some of these districts have desired for a long time to become a part of the district to share the benefits of fire protection, for the small additional taxation.

Music Features Tuesday Meeting Of Kiwanis Club

An all musical program featured Tuesday's meeting of the Kiwanis club. A. A. Thielke, director of instrumental music of the Campbell Grammar school presented the 25 piece school orchestra in several exceptionally well played selections, featured by a piano solo by Lorraine Wood.

As an added musical treat C. P. Klassen and the high school a capella choir sang the three numbers which they are to sing at the choir festival to be held in the civic auditorium in San Jose Friday evening. Teresa Conetto was the soloist.

Dr. W. I. Merrill, as chairman of the day, presented the two musical directors and students.

Next week President-elect Jack Murdock will hold a club training school for the 1942 officers, directors and committee chairmen.

"Famous Women" Topic At Meeting Of Woman's Club

"Famous Women, of the United States" was the topic discussed by Miss Louise Adams and Mrs. J. E. Witherspoon at the meeting of the Country Woman's club on Monday afternoon.

These ladies told of the famous women that are seldom seen in the headlines. First there were the courageous Pilgrim mothers that are barely mentioned in the history books. Miss Adams told bits of the deeds of such women as Sister Maria Dominican, who worked among the Indians of early California, and she told of the life of Annie Sullivan, the teacher of Helen Keller. The philosophy of Amelia Earhart as explained in George Palmer Putnam's book "Soaring Wings" was discussed by Miss Adams.

Mrs. Witherspoon spoke of the woman who really made Thanksgiving a national holiday, Sarah J. Hale. "There isn't a woman among us who has reached middle age that hasn't done something courageous in her life," said Mrs. Witherspoon. She closed her part of the program by reading a patriotic poem by Lorraine Mann, a young lady only seventeen years of age which really does credit to her sex and makes Miss Mann a famous woman in the hearts of many.

The musical portion of the program was provided by Mrs. Howard Church who sang beautifully "For You Alone" and "Just A Wearyin' For You." She was accompanied by Mrs. Virginia Rutherford.

Miss Emma Barzone of the grammar school faculty entertained the group with several cleverly interpreted humorous readings.

Mrs. G. E. Farley, chairman of the day, introduced the program. Others on the

The evening's program will be made up of beautifully arranged Christmas carols, as produced by the different choirs.

Mass numbers will be directed by Roy E. Freeburg of the University of San Francisco faculty.

The Campbell High school choir will offer as their contributions; "Send Forth Thy Spirit," by Schuetky, and "Sweet Little Jesus Boy," by MacGimsey-Lee, with Teresa Conetto taking the solo part.

LESSON FOR LABOR

"Labor leaders," says Dan Tracy of the Department of Labor, "should appreciate that what the government giveth the government can take away."

Mr. Tracy's conviction is conspicuous by its absence in labor's actions in defense industries where shut-downs have been precipitated by foolish jurisdictional wrangles, by boycotts against labor-saving devices, and by the unbridled appetite for prestige and power of certain leaders. We suspect that Mr. Tracy had a second thought in mind—that labor has had no better friend than the present administration, that no administration could clip labor's wings with greater support than the present one.

In the present situation all groups, including labor, must place the nation's interest and security first before Congress is moved to limit or suspend long-standing rights and privileges.

TAPS FOR TINFOIL

Prepare to see the glitter of tinfoil vanish from the American scene.

The rapacious jaws of defense needs are going to which now encase a host of articles such as cigar-gobble up all available stocks of the lead and tinfoil ettes, films, chewing gum and candy. Effective next March 15, the ban on such wrappers is expected to save 60,000 tons of lead and 3000 tons of tin for the armament program next year.

All these items of common use have so long been enclosed in silvery wrappings that everyone has come to take them for granted. However, the ban on the use of foil, like the bans on the use of many other materials is one more token of the all-consuming demands of defense made total.

But the restrictions so far enforced leave the American consumer in a Promised Land teeming with plenty by comparison with the plight of his fellow consumers in nine-tenths of the rest of the world, where even the barest necessities of existence are scarce or impossible to procure at any price. We may have to forego many non-essentials, which is only proof of how much good fortune is really ours.

* * * * * *

IT'S THE BERRIES

For a longer time than memory runneth to the contrary, our good neighbors Oregon and Washington, no less than many states of the east and middle west, have been friends in need to California. When our horn of plenty, agriculturally speaking, grew perilously top-heavy because of production too large for normal markets citizens of other states have rallied behind farmer-consumer anti-surplus campaigns to relieve California's distressed crops.

California has a chance to reciprocate for favors done, now that Oregon and Washington, as well as two or three eastern states, find their cranberry crop more than 100,000 barrels greater than last year. Retailers have pledged themselves to lend a helping hand, stores bringing nation-wide aid in some 37,000 retail outlets. It's the berries, as everyone knows, that add zest to holiday season dining. But cranberries, in addition, are invaluable for home canning and jelly making. Though preserving, for many housewives, has become nearly a lost art, there are signs that higher living costs may bring it back into favor. It's with good reason that the consumer's division of the OPM is urging a revival of home canning as a means of cheating old HCL.

No better product could be used to start the revival than the tart red berries which add tang and color to American dining tables at any season of the year. Let's appreciate our good luck. In Europe, they're not eating any cranberry sauce with their turkey. They haven't any turkey.

SANTA PACKS A WALLOP

There's at least one good reason old Kris Kringle is wearing such a jolly smile this season. All that cheery jingling filling the Christmas air doesn't come from the silvery bells on Santa's sleigh. A good measure of it comes from the silvery dollars of this year's Christmas shopping parade, boasting more shoppers and dollars than have been seen in years.

Unimpeachable proof of the fact Santa is going to tote a staggering load of gifts this season can be found in Christmas savings clubs figures. Christmas savings in California's leading branch bank top last year's big record by two million dollars. This good news means the Bank of America alone is mailing out $18 million in checks this week to 300,000 Christmas club members in every part of the state—a sum three times larger than that of any other bank in the nation.

This is Christmas mail which constitutes one of the cheeriest kinds of greetings, ushering in, as it does, the biggest Yuletide shopping of a decade.

JOE LOUIS AND THE BIG GAME

Joe Louis, whose form of education has produced the best-trained pair of fighting hands, or dukes, in the boxing business but has virtually overlooked his mind, would feel as out of place in a great university as he'd feel riding to hounds with Lord Halifax. Yet, as befits a champion, Joe somehow finishes a little ahead, even in indirect competition with the Universities of Stanford and California.

These schools did a very nice thing at the Big Game last Saturday. Four thousand seats were reserved for men in uniform at 50 cents apiece—and those seats could have been sold like hot cakes to civilians at $4.40 a copy. It was a generous as well as sporting gesture of the students toward the service men.

Joe Louis, now, is going to fight Buddy Baer again in January. Buddy is no soft touch. He knocked Louis clear out of the ring with one punch when they met before. The money? Louis has donated in advance every cent of his end of the purse to the U. S. Navy fund. As the boys say at the gym, he lays his title (the thing he prizes most in all the world) on the line—for free. That's Joe Louis' donation, from the only Big Game he knows how to play. He has to do it that way. He's the champion.

EIGHTEEN MILLION SNIFFLERS

Eighteen million Americans had colds in the head last week, according to the Gallup poll. This means one American in seven with the sniffles!

Economists tell us that colds cost this country, in work-days lost and expense of treatment, more than a billion dollars annually, and this winter are a drag on national defense. Cracker-barrell philosophers are remarking, no doubt, that civilization can't amount to much when the ubiquitous common cold contemptuously sneezes, so to speak, at all medical research laboratories and giants of therapeutics. But to the suffering wheezers and nose-blowers, the statistics probably bring only the negative solace of a vast deal of the company that misery loves—and to their cold-free neighbors, it is to be hoped, a firm resolve to keep out of drafts and keep the feet dry.

PAPER FOR DEFENSE

A skeptical public asks how defense can cause a paper shortage, but a few facts from the National Trade Paper association should mke the case clear.

During the next year, 120,000 tons of paper pulp will be needed for munitions; 30,000 pounds of blue print paper for each battleship built; 1 million pounds of cover paper for soldiers' hand books; 11,000 tons of paper for shell containers. In a word, fragile paper builds mighty defenses.

Wrestlers Ready For Tournament

As a result of Campbell High school getting up in the wrestling world, the local gym will be the scene of one senior tournament and five dual meets this year.

The senior tournament is scheduled for Feb. 4, while the dual meets are scheduled for Jan. 9, 23, 31, Feb. 6, and 20.

A senior tournament is composed of wrestlers who have won medals in previous bouts. The junior tournament is held for those who have not yet won any medals.

The complete schedule is as follows: Dec. 13—junior wrestling tournament at Sequoia; Dec. 19—Campbell at Santa Clara; Jan. 9—San Jose at Campbell; Jan. 17—San Jose invitational tournament at San Jose; Jan. 23—Sequoia at Campbell; Feb. 6—Hayward at Campbell; Feb. 4—senior tournament at Campbell; Feb. 20—Santa Clara at Campbell; Feb. 27—Campbell at San Jose.

THE BOOK MARK

by marty

Anybody's Gold by Joseph Henry Jackson.

The author of this book is heard every Sunday evening on the radio as the man who tells the good and bad points of quite a number of the new books. His program is known as "A Bookman's Notebook." How he ever took time out to write such a grand book as "Anybody's Gold" is far beyond your Book Mark's comprehension. Many and valuable volumnes have been published covering the California Gold Rush days, but to date none have covered quite the angle that Mr. Jackson's book does.

Just what angle does the book cover? Oh, I heard you wondering to yourself. (The inanimateness of your Book Mark permits the privilege of listening to your wonderings.) This book is based entirely on historical facts—the human interest side of it having been taken from original diaries and personal papers of families whose people searched for gold in the '50's.

As Mr. Jackson says, everyone who dug for gold did not get rich, as many people of today are inclined to believe, and every gold miner was not a grizzled old pard as has been said. On the other hand, the average miner was a young man, twenty-four years old, adventurous. He had joined the Gold Rush because he was tired of his job, or had no job at all, back home. "Anybody's Gold" deals beautifully and at length with the miner's life during the 'rush' days and after. When the excitement wore off and gold was hard to find the young fellow turned to other means of making a living. What he turned to, what success he had, are the points of interest that Mr. Jackcson elaborates on. It is an entirely different side of the 'early days.'

There are numerous illustrations throughout the book expertly done by E. H. Suydam, one of the most famous artists of the present day. He died recently.

This book will live and be a compliment to anybody's library.

Mrs. Rex Cornell was called to Ogden, Utah, Thanksgiving day because of the illness of her husband who has been employed there for some time. They gave up the Farman house on North Second street, where they had been living, although it was reported that she would return to Campbell later, depending upon her husband's condition.

The Andrew Larson family have moved to Campbell to the Farman house on North Second street, adjoining the William Coupland property. Mrs. Larson is the oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Coupland, and has been here since the illness of her mother last summer.

The Current Rate on Suckers

By IRVIN S. COBB

THE late Tom Williams dropped into a gambling house in Reno, Nevada, one night, and, playing roulette, speedily dropped his roll, but not before he had made up his mind that the game was crooked.

On his way down stairs in deep disgust he met the proprietor, Long Brown.

"What kind of a dump is this you're running?" demanded Williams, "I've just been skinned out of four hundred dollars."

"Who brought you in here?" said Brown.

"I brought myself in," said Williams.

"Oh, if that's the case," said Brown, "I owe you eighty dollars."

"How come?"

"Well, you see, I pay twenty per cent apiece for all suckers that are steered in. You appear to have steered yourself in. Here's your eighty."

"Mr. Pickwick" To Be Presented By College Players

San Jose State college has announced that this year's Christmas production to be given as a gift to the community will be Charles Dickens' "Mr. Pickwick." This twenty-fourth annual presentation will be staged free of charge in the Morris Dailey auditorium on the campus on Thursday and Friday nights, Dec. 11 and 12 at 8:30 p. m.

Under the direction of Theodore Hatlen of the college faculty, a large cast of students has been rehearsing for several weeks on this comedy of old England. Elaborate settings have been designed by Wendell Johnson, technical director, and constructed under the supervision of Peter Mingrone. Costumes of the period will add greatly to the color and excitement of the play.

In the leading role of Mr. Pickwick, who manages to get himself into many amusing scrapes, is Bert Holland. Other leading characters engage in the many humorous incidents of the famous story; the eccentric chiseler Jingle, played by John Shepherd, causes laughter by his love affair with the spinster Rachel (Barbara Bellah) against the objections of the portly but romantic Tupman (Bill Kidwell). Scores of other characters carry on their lives and humourse throughout this dramatization of the famous novel.

The Christmas production is the customary gift of the college to the public and is without charge. Seats are unreserved excepting for holders of season tickets. Unaccompanied children will not be admitted to the auditorium.

DEFENSE BOND QUIZ

Q. I am a machinist in an airplane factory. When the war is over I may be laid off. How can I prepare for that time?

A. Make systematic and regular purchases of Defense Savings Bonds. They will give you a substantial reserve which you can fall back on in the period of readjustment after the emergency.

Q. To what very large group of Americans does the Government look particularly for extensive buying of Defense Bonds and Stamps?

A. People in the middle and lower income brackets, where many of the most rapid increases in national earnings have taken place. This immense part of our population can be especially effective in reducing national purchasing power by buying the Bonds and Stamps, thus aiding the country's defense program, while helping to keep down the cost of living.

The FARMERS CORNER

by RALPH H. TAYLOR

Executive Secretary Agricultural Council of California

It is an ancient and time honored custom in this land of ours for public officials—on national holidays and during times of stress—to give patriotic addresses, exhorting the people to re-dedicate themselves to America and to prove equal to their great heritage by a higher degree of good citizenship.

We have no quarrel with that custom; the American people need to take time out at frequent intervals to reconsecrate themselves to America—and certainly, in a democracy, good citizenship is the cornerstone of good government.

But under present conditions, we are of the opinion that the custom might well be reversed for once. It is time that the American people spoke to American officeholders and exhorted them to give a little more of unselfish, unswerving devotion to the people whose destinies they control, and to the nation whose trust they hold.

Lest we be misunderstood, this writer does not question the fundamental patriotism of most public officials; they are probably just as patriotic as the voters who elected them. But many of them, we believe, have lost sight of the fact that extravagant spending of public funds on unneeded governmental frills and follies ceases to be "just politics" during a national emergency, and can only be classed as disloyalty to their country and the people who comprise it. Many such public officials, who would gladly shoulder a rifle to hold off an invader, would buck like a Missouri mule if asked to cut their departmental overhead so that funds could be made available, in greater measure, to arm this country against such invasion. Many of them, we believe, just haven't stopped to define patriotism, as the term applies to government officers.

There can be no escape from national defense taxes—and no real American, who places a proper valuation on his American birthright—will seek to evade taxes that are imposed to safeguard his nation's security. But the mere fact that such tremendous demands must be made on the people for national defense should make any reasonable, honest, patriotic publice official think twice before spending public funds for non-essentials; certainly it should make him ashamed to dole out the funds entrusted to him for political patronage.

Several recent developments in the news are responsible for this unrequested "speech to public officials."

First, we noted an announcement by the California Taxpayers' association that local government expenditures throughout the state increased 42 per cent in the five years between 1934-35 and 1939-40. Coupled with this was a report that state expenditures during the same period went up 34 per cent, jumping from $166,000,000 to $223,000,000. And in addition to these increases, of course, there was a record breaking jump in federal expenditures for non-defense purposes.

Second, we noted a report by the Assembly Interim committee on governmental efficiency and economy recommending that in view of soaring state revenues, which are gretly exceeding normal needs, Governor Olson should call a special session of the state legislature to reduce state taxes. This report pointed out that the state deficit will be liquidated by the middle of next year and that the present state tax burden is "unnecessarily in excess of the state's actual requirements, while at the same time taxpayers in the state will be facing the burden of paying out huge additional amounts for necessary federal tax purposes."

It is conservatively estimated that national defense taxes next year will take at least 24 cents out of every dollar earned by American citizens. And it is considered quite probable that defense tax demands may greatly exceed this amount. In Great Britain, 50 per cent of the nation's income is going into armament costs; in Germany 60 per cent.

In light of such conditions, in view of the great sacrifices which are to be asked of citizens in every walk of life—isn't it time for every public official in California, from Governor Olson down to the lowliest township officer, to re-examine his books and his patriotism? Isn't it time for the people to speak to their chosen representatives and say: "We are sacrificing; we expect you to do likewise—and if you don't, we shall put you down as having failed in your public trust and your loyalty to America?" We think it is!

Woman's Club

committee were Mrs. W. H. Van Dyke, Mrs. I. R. Abbott, Miss Louise Adams, Mrs. R. W. Kennedy and Mrs. Georgene Kidward.

The club room was artistically decorated with massive bouquets of loquot leaves toyon, woodwardia ferns, and other fall foliage. The mantlepiece held a copper candielabrum and sprays of colorful cotoneaster.

Mrs. G. E. Jeffers presided at the business meeting which preceded the program. It was decided that club members should earn one dollar as a birthday gift to the club. The dollar may be earned by selling food or handwork at the meetings.

A number of children's books have been purchased by the club for the Campbell library. It was suggested that members add to these children's books from their own libraries which their families have out grown.

Mrs. Dan Clark announced that the next meeting will be the Christmas Tea held on Dec. 15 at 2:45. C. P. Klassen will present the high school a capella choir in Christmas carols.

Members are asked to bring jams and jellies at that time to be placed in the Christmas boxes of the needy which are put up by the Sigma Sigma club and the Women's Service club.

As is the usual custom donations for the Veteran's hospital are also brought on that day. The things that have been especially requested are as follows:

Games such as checkers, cribbage boards, parchesi; playing cards; good pictures from magazines, etc, in frames to hang in the rooms; picture scrap books; candy, pop corn, in tin cans if possible; old Christmas cards; rags in balls for rugs, old sheet music; sheet music for programs during the year.

The County Federation of Women's clubs meeting will be held on Dec. 12 at Mayfield. These meetings are well worth while and club members are urged to attend.

MOVIE STAR JOINS U.S. NAVY

Ensign Wayne Morris Seeks Wings

Wayne Morris, recent star of "I Wanted Wings," became a member of Uncle Sam's Navy in May, 1941, when he was appointed to the rank of Ensign.

When asked what he thought of the United States Navy, Morris said, "I think every man who is considering joining a military service should look into the 'chance of a lifetime' which the Navy and Naval Reserve offer to get into the big-pay field of the future—aviation. In the Navy you can attend the finest flight training schools in the world, and receive instruction from Navy pilots who introduced dive bombing, aircraft carriers and catapult take-offs to the rest of the world. Also, there are opportunities in Naval Aviation for men who don't want to fly. They can be trained as aviation machinists, metalsmiths, photographers, observers, or they can receive instruction in many other trades. It's a great life in the Navy."

Intramural Football Clashes Start at Hi School

The football play-off in intramural football at Campbell Union High school began Tuesday after school.

The play off is in both "A" and "B" leagues. The "Rambling Wrecks," "Buzzards," "V Boys," "Jeeps," and "Dandy Lions" are scrapping with each other for the chance to get their names on the championship plaque in the "A" league and the "Lions," "Rats," and "Bums" will tussle in the "B" league for the championship.

Ralph H. Hyde kept unbroken his attendance of forty years at Stanford-California football games by being among those present Saturday. His first games were witnessed as a young boy when his older brother Dr. Elmer Hyde entered Stanford, and the games were played in San Francisco.

The wood work shop of Campbell High school has been busy the past few weeks under the instruction of Steve Casaleggio, constructing a podium for the orchestra director, and a collapsible stand for the choir.

Several boys, perhaps with an eye to the future, have been making living and bedroom sets.

Mrs. Harry C. Smith will leave Friday morning for San Francisco to attend the winter meeting of the California Press association which convenes Friday and Saturday.

The Footlighters will hold their annual Christmas party Tuesday evening, Dec. 9 in the hall, with LBen Howard, president, presiding over the business sessions. Members are especially requested to attend because of special entertainment and refreshments being planned by the committee.

Mr. and Mrs. George Booker spent a few days last week in Sacramento with Mr. and Mrs. S. R. Wheeling.
